Monte:

We are unable to open the file and tell you what it includes. Based solely on its name, we think it may be a backup of Power's Microsoft Exchange server, but we cannot verify that or verify when it was created.

Attached is Facebook's portion of the Joint Letter re the missing Power emails that I promised would be forthcoming.

In light of your letter attached to the email, including the acknowledgement that Defendants are producing only now following the close of all discovery the backup email server from the ASA drive which should have been produced in November, I anticipate Facebook will be revising this letter to seek appropriate sanctions. Please confirm that this email server includes all communications between Power employees.

Attached is Facebook's portion of the Joint Letter to Magistrate Judge Spero concerning the use at trial of former Power employees residing in Brazil. We will shortly also be sending you Facebook's portion of the Joint Letters concerning a further supervised Rule 30(b)(6) deposition of Power, and re compelling production of the missing power.com emails generated by former Power employees. Facebook of course reserves the right to make further edits to these portions before their filing tomorrow. Please let me know if you have any questions.
